INVESTMENT STRATEGY

The investment objective of the Sub-Fund is to seek stable returns with a low correlation to traditional markets and a target annualised volatility comprised between 8% and 12%, under normal market conditions (it being understood that the Sub-Fund realised annualised volatility could be higher or lower).

To achieve this investment objective, the Sub-Fund will implement a dispersion strategy linked to equity markets, which consists in building a long exposure on volatility of single stocks versus a short exposure on index (or basket of single stocks) volatility.

The Sub-Fund's portfolio will be allocated to different dispersion strategy trades seeking to deliver a recurrent return through diversification. Such allocation will evolve over time as a function of perceived market opportunities and risks.

US Market Highlights

In the US, Top 50 1M realized dispersion came in at a moderate 17.54%. The Fed's first hike since 2023 pushed US 10Y yields 54bps higher to 5.29%, and forced markets to consider the impacts of higher for longer rates. Beneath a calm index, this created a clear rift. Rate-sensitive and cyclical names repeatedly sold off while mega-cap growth held firm, with the S&P 500 down only 0.5% against roughly -2% ex-semis and -5% equal-weighted. Within semis, CPU and memory names (INTC, AMD) rallied on renewed AI compute demand while AVGO lagged, adding single-stock vol among the largest index weights. This low correlation kept index realized vol subdued and supported dispersion. On the side of implied parameters, spreads held around 19.00%, still rich relative to lower realized levels. Overall, the fund benefited from its selection bias, with exposure to names such as Meta, Dell and Snowflake.

European Market Highlights

In Europe, SX5E 1M realized dispersion came in at . The ECB joined the Fed with a 25bps hike on September 10, as eurozone inflation picked up again on the back of Brent above $100. Long-end yields rose sharply in response, led by France, where the 10Y OAT rose about 66bps to 4.75%. Here too, the rate move opened a clear rift beneath a relatively contained index. Insurers, Banks and Food & Beverage repeatedly came under pressure, while Basic Resources and Technology held up better, helped by the oil complex and the AI compute trade. Country differentiation added a further layer, as renewed French fiscal concerns widened the OAT-Bund spread by about 34bps to around 117bps and weighed specifically on French names. This rotation between sectors and countries kept correlation in check and dampened index realized vol, which supported dispersion. On the side of implied parameters, spreads held around 14.50%, still rich relative to realized levels. Overall, the fund benefited from its selection bias, with exposure to names such as Koninklijke, Orange and Enel.
